No! No more growth in Arlington with these multi use apartments. Single family homes would help keep the charm that made Arlington so sought after. I was born and raised here, 1 child left to graduate and then, at this time we all plan on moving out. Arlington has been ruined with the rapid garbage growth. The hospital is still small, grocery options are limited. I work in Smokey point and what a disgusting place to be! Homeless and drugged out people around my employer daily. Walking like zombies across the 6 lanes of traffic. Lynnwood here we come. The schools were great but now crowded and focused on "all inclusion" small town Arlington is the next Everett/ Seattle crap hole with low income housing running out those with good old fashioned pride and work ethic! Good luck passing school levies when all you have are apartment dwellers. I will gladly pay our 6k property taxes somewhere cozy and farm focused. Not saying we are so far right but I will not live under Seattles far left being pushed on what used to be the boonies. We are 5 owner households on the out!

Out of here soon!
